Bitext Sample Customer Service Training Dataset for English

Overview

This dataset contains example utterances and their corresponding intents from the Customer Service domain. The data can be used to train intent recognition Natural Language Understanding (NLU) platforms.

The dataset covers the "Customer Service" domain and includes 27 intents grouped in 11 categories. These intents have been selected from Bitext's collection of 20 domain-specific datasets (banking, retail, utilities...), keeping the intents that are common across domains. See below for a full list of categories and intents.

Utterances

The dataset contains over 8,000 utterances, with a varying number of utterances per intent, including language register variations such as politeness, colloquial, swearing, indirect style... To select the utterances, we use stratified sampling to generate a dataset with a general user language register profile.

The dataset also reflects commonly occurring linguistic phenomena of real-life chatbots, such as:

- spelling mistakes
- run-on words
- missing punctuation

Contents

Each entry in the dataset contains an example utterance from the Customer Service domain, along with its corresponding intent, category and additional linguistic. Each line contains the following four fields:

- flags: the applicable linguistic flags
- utterance: an example user utterance
- category: the high-level intent category
- intent: the intent corresponding to the user utterance

Linguistic flags

The dataset contains annotations for linguistic phenomena, which can be used to adapt bot training to different user language profiles. These flags are:

- B - Basic syntactic structure
- C - Complex/Coordinated syntactic structure
- E - Expanded abbreviations (I'm -> I am, I'd -> I would...)
- I - Interrogative structure
- K - Keyword only
- L - Lexical variation (synonyms)
- M - Morphological variation (plurals, tenses...)
- P - Politeness variation
- Q - Colloquial variation
- W - Offensive language
- Z - Noise (spelling, punctuation...)

These phenomena make the training dataset more effective and make bots more accurate and robust.

Categories and Intents

The intent categories covered by the dataset are:

- ACCOUNT
- CANCELLATION_FEE
- CONTACT
- DELIVERY
- FEEDBACK
- INVOICE
- NEWSLETTER

The intents covered by the dataset are:

The benefits that each Data Provider receives from making Data available and that You receive from Data or otherwise under these terms and conditions shall be deemed sufficient consideration for the formation of this Agreement. Accordingly, Data Provider(s) and You (the “Parties”) agree as follows:

For any form of Entity, that is to make the Data available to any individual who is not employed by that Entity or engaged as a contractor or agent to perform work on that Entity’s behalf. A “Publication” occurs each time You Publish Data.

1.10 “Receive” or “Receives” means to have been given access to Data, locally or remotely.
